V-EGG is plant-based vegan egg replacer.

V-EGG contains similar amount of protein compared to a normal egg, but less in calorie.

Fat and cholesterol are almost undetectable which could be an alternative choice for people who have hypercholesterolemia problems. Moreover, this plant-based egg has food technological functionality such as foaming and thickening which can be applied in a variety recipes rather than a normal egg. For example, it can be used to substitute egg in baking and dressing process. V-EGG can also be a solution to improve quality of life for egg-allergic people. Aquafaba and rice protein are used to make V-EGG. Nonetheless, it delivers value to the environment by reducing waste and sustainable packaging.
